TRAINING DAY

- 19 JUNE 2021 -

Every year the Royal Welsh Agricultural Society holds a chainsaw logging and tree felling competition somewhere out in the woodlands of Wales.

The competition consists of 5 disciplines that all relate to an operation performed by a forest worker during a working day: Fitting a new chain, accurately crosscutting a log that is either on the floor or is resting across another log, plus felling a tree and limbing (removing branches). This promotes precision chain saw use within the industry.

This year, at the Royal Welsh Showground, in the Forestry area, we will be holding the annual practice/training day, that precedes the competition, where competitors new and old can come together to practice and improve their skills.

So, come along and see this year's potential competitors in action honing their skills; always willing to explain the competition, maybe you might be interested enough to give it a go?
